Opportunities to Invest

Programs for Today and Tomorrow

Your investment can make our strong UCCS programs even stronger. Whether it's support for a program that equips workers for today or tomorrow, our programs shape thinking and transform lives.

Aging initiative

This initiative builds on the campus' distinction in the field of geropsychology and addresses the rapidly growing needs of an aging population. A doctoral program in this field was recently approved. In addition to faculty, financial support is essential in order to give the program the financial capacity to provide outstanding training, care, and research in the field of geropsychology.

Arts and culture

THEATREWORKS is a professional regional theater that rejuvenates the spirit of artistic innovation. Loved and appreciated by the entire community since it began as an outreach program of the university in 1975, THEATREWORKS brings together national guest artists, regional talent, and students to create theatre for the new millennium. It is known for its innovative productions of classic and contemporary theatre.

Education outreach

Our multi-faceted outreach program for P-16 education offers a unique community partnership opportunity and includes assisting and extending UCCS relationships with local, regional, and national education agencies; enhancing UCCS teacher education programs; increasing opportunities for research and sponsored program activities; offering innovative P-12 and higher education professional development programs; initiating alternative mechanisms for student recruitment and retention of international, ethnically diverse, and nontraditional students; establishing inter-institutional and agency agreements and partnerships; recruiting and retaining a diverse faculty through intercollegiate collaboration; extending UCCS technology utilization in teaching and learning; and increasing entrepreneurial activities for the university.
